Long after Israel's failure, David in Psalm 95 was still looking for a rest in his own day. Likewise, the author of Hebrews uses that word repeatedly in this passage to declare that a rest can still be experienced. The reference to Jesus in verse 8 is to Joshua of the Old Testament. The names Joshua and Jesus are identical in Hebrew and Greek (hence 1611 rendering of "Jesus" in verse 8). The context certainly involves Joshua, the son of Nun. Joshua brought the second generation into Canaan, and they did enter into a rest as the Scriptures record. Yet the author suggests that there must be a permanent, better rest for the people of God, or David would not have still been looking forward to it in his day. (Thomas Nelson King James Study Bible)

4.	But you may think, Did not the Israelites including this man enter	into this rest?
	Hebrews answers this by saying that	spoke of

Meditation: Christ's Divinity - Rock and Refuge of My Soul

In the manger at Bethlehem there lay a perfect infant, but there also was Jehovah. That mysterious Being Who rode on an ass's colt, and wept over Jerusalem, was as much a man as you are, and as much God as the Father is. That pale Being that hung quivering on the cross was indeed man; it was human blood that flowed from His wounds; but He was as truly God. He was without sin. He was the only one in human form of whom it can be said, He was holy, harmless, undefiled, and separate from sinners; the only one on Whom God could look down from heaven and say, "This is My beloved Son, in Whom I am well pleased." Every member of our body and faculty of our mind we have used as the servants of sin. Every member of His body and faculty of His mind were used only as servants of holiness. His mouth was the only human mouth from which none but gracious words ever proceeded. His eye was the only human eye that never shot forth flames of pride, or envy, or lust. His hand was the only human hand that never was stretched forth but in doing good. His heart was the only human heart that was not deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked. When Satan came to Him, he found nothing in Him. Now, in these two things (that is, His divinity and His perfect purity), it behooved Him to be unlike His brethren, or He could not have been a Saviour at all. In all other things it behooved Him to be made like us. There was no part of our condition that He did not humble Himself unto.
